The Omnium Global Executive MBA is an innovative program that will change the way you think. One of the first truly global programs of its kind, it’s an intensive 18-month degree program based in key business centres in six global regions. You emerge with the skills to lead in an increasingly globalized business environment, a new network of international contacts, and invaluable insights on how to advance your career.

Why join the Omnium Global Executive MBA Program?

With Omnium, you can earn a University of Toronto Master of Business Administration degree in 18 months and discover a world of opportunity. During the program you will gain a global network of classmates and business people who will open new doors for you and your organization. The Omnium Global Executive MBA Program is among few programs in the world that gives students a face-to-face learning experience through global program modules, while allowing them to live and work in their home countries. For individuals and organizations, the global exposure and international expertise available to students in the program is invaluable.

Key Learning: Applied Innovation

The Omnium Capstone Project teaches students to think differently. Over the 18-month course, student teams work to solve a challenging business problem. It can be an entrepreneurial venture or a problem faced by a global company. Through Applied Innovation, students approach problems from a new perspective. Students learn not only to solve problems, but to create and scale an opportunity to generate increased revenue. These skills give students immediate and lasting impact in their careers.

Leadership Development

An essential component of the Omnium program is the opportunity it gives experienced professionals to reflect and build on their leadership strengths. Beginning in the foundation module, students complete a series of self-assessments and begin to build their leadership plans. Courses will cover team building, emotional intelligence, decision making, relationship management, organizational and personal leadership, and will provide numerous opportunities to learn from leaders from around the world.

Omnium Faculty

Omnium faculty members have stellar reputations for their groundbreaking research, published work, and their authoritative insights into an exceptionally wide range of management issues. They are selected from the University of Toronto and our affiliate institutions around the world to ensure the classroom experience is both engaging and culturally-relevant. The blended nature of the faculty ensures that Omnium students gain a variety of perspectives on global business issues and gain access to a wide network of thought leaders.
