

#1 in Canada for Open Enrolment
THE FINANCIAL TIMES 2020

Take the first step towards implementing personal, organizational and system change through health leadership development and management school expertise.

“The Health Leadership program was the most valuable and intensive learning experience of my career. Every health care leader today requires health leadership training to do their job appropriately and effectively.”

James G. Wright

Surgeon-in-Chief, VP Medical
The Hospital for Sick Children

The next generation.

The Advanced Health Leadership Program targets current and potential members of executive teams in the health system; it focuses on the development of the next generation of health leaders. It seeks to improve their understanding and skills in the areas of leadership, management of change, emotional and political intelligence and Integrative Thinking™.

The program has been redesigned to reflect changes in health systems across Canada (e.g. home care and primary care reform, new funding models, technological shifts and resulting opportunities, evolving structures, human resource challenges, financial sustainability and greater demand for integration and quality). This program is designed to equip senior leaders in the health and life sciences sector with new strengths to play a leadership role in a changing health system.

Addressing key challenges.

Advanced Health Leadership addresses four major challenges or themes, each of which is key to leadership development:

- » System, Organizational and Personal Leadership
- » Management of Change

- » Emotional and Political Intelligence
- » Integrative Thinking™ and Managerial Tools

Over the three modules, you will learn how to handle uncertain circumstances; manage stakeholder expectations; lead strategic change initiatives; build sophisticated skills in partnership, networking, influencing, negotiating and management of complex problems; and apply strategic tools and approaches to health care's most pressing challenges.

Who should attend.

This program is designed for current or potential senior members of leadership teams in health service provider organizations, agencies and other health system organizations, including both clinical and non-clinical leaders.
